

attorney Christian G. Zebicoff joined the firm as a partner.

In his new position, Mr. Zebicoff will co-manage the firm's trust and estates, estate planning and elder law practice group. He will assist clients and their families with the preparation of their wills and trusts and advise them on more complex tax planning techniques and long-term care and Medicaid planning issues.

Mr. Zebicoff, who previously worked at Jones Morrison LLP as partner, also has substantial experience representing commercial and not-for-profit entities. In addition, he is an experienced real estate attorney, having represented buyers and sellers of single family residences, co-ops, condominiums and townhouses in New York City and surrounding areas. He has valuable experience related to the zoning and planning issues that arise in connection with real estate transactions.

During his prestigious 23-year law career, Mr. Zebicoff has litigated many Surrogates Court matters, including contested probate, accounting and miscellaneous proceedings in all counties. He also regularly presents on the topic of estate planning and health care decision making to various professional and community organizations.

Mr. Zebicoff received his law degree from Fordham University School of Law in 1993 and a bachelor of arts degree in history from Boston College in 1988.

He is a member of the New York State Bar Association and the Bar Association of the City of New York and is licensed to practice law in New York State.
