Romer Debbas LLP announced attorney Richard Klein has just joined the firm as a partner.

In his new position, Klein will manage the firm's co-op and condominium board practice serving as counsel to approximately 50 boards.

Klein previously ran his own law firm for the last 17 years. During his legal career in New York City, Klein has spoken at conferences and seminars on topics ranging from the myths and truths regarding various legal issues pertaining to the cooperative housing market.

He has also presented several seminars sponsored by the Hospitality Industry Committee of the Foundation for Accounting Education regarding the legal issues raised when buying or selling a restaurant business, and when negotiating a commercial lease for a restaurant business.

Klein received his law degree from Fordham University School of Law and Bachelor of Arts from Wesleyan University.
